Environmental Health Perspectives ,1993 Environmental Health Perspectives James K. Selkirk,1993 Cancer Risk by Social Class and Occupation Eero I. Pukkala,1995 This study deals with the vexed question of what groups in the general population run the risk of developing cancer Based on information provided by the highly regarded Finnish Cancer Registry the survey considers the incidence of cancers affecting as many as 46 parts of the body and their links with 335 occupational categories By adjusting the occupation specific risk ratios for social class restricting their study to a particular age group and applying the same criteria to women as to men the author strives to make the relationship between cancers and certain occupations as clear as possible His results are shown to correlate well with those obtained from specific studies of occupational cancer Factors related to a person s occupation seem to determine some cancer risks while the overall incidence and types of malignancy appear to be associated with the way of life of one s social class Smoking diet and reproductive factors are discussed from this viewpoint Of interest for future research new connections between disease and occupation are indicated in some contributions Epidemiologists oncologists environmentalists and those working in preventive medicine as well as in occupational and public health will find much to interest them in this clearly organized book Psychopharmacology Bulletin ,1966
