

ACCIDENT PREVENTION

According to the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA), a sign is a surface that is prepared to warn or instruct workers or members of the public who may be exposed to hazards. In order to stay safe, it is important that you pay attention to safety signs in the workplace and always heed their warnings and/or messages.

Types of Signs

- Danger signs are used where an immediate hazard is present. Danger signs indicate that special precautions must be taken by employees to avoid serious injury or death.
- Caution and Warning signs are used to warn against possible hazards, against which proper precautions should be taken.
- Safety instruction signs provide general instructions and suggestions relative to safety measures.

Tags may be used as a temporary means to warn of hazards in the area.

Labels and SDSs

You must also be aware of labels on chemicals that will alert you to any safety issues. Chemical labels provide basic information on the chemical. For more information, refer to an MSDS or what to do in case of emergency. For more information, refer to the data sheet, or use a label that is legible, repeatable, and durable.
