Abstract

1111

Dr. Richard A. Anderson, University of California, Los Angeles

The Washington Post today is reporting that the FBI is considering whether to prosecute the two men who were charged with the murder of the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. in Memphis, Tennessee, in April 1968. The two men, James Earl Ray and Ray's co-defendant, are now in prison in London, where they are being held in connection with the assassination of Dr. King. The FBI is considering whether to prosecute the two men because they are now in London, and the FBI is not sure whether it can get them back to the United States to be tried. The FBI is also considering whether to prosecute the two men because they are now in London, and the FBI is not sure whether it can get them back to the United States to be tried.

Abstract: The authors examined the effects of a 12-week, 100% body weight (BW) resistance training program on the body composition and muscle strength of 10 sedentary, middle-aged men. The program consisted of three sessions per week, each including a 10-minute warm-up, 20 minutes of resistance training, and 10 minutes of cardiovascular exercise. The resistance training program was designed to increase muscle mass and strength. The results of the study showed that the program was effective in increasing muscle mass and strength, and reducing body fat percentage. The authors concluded that a 12-week, 100% BW resistance training program is an effective way to improve body composition and muscle strength in sedentary, middle-aged men.
