Of Trees and Clouds Franziska Weidle, 2020-05-11 Software based technologies deeply saturate our everyday lives Consequently they also influence the ways we see and mediate the world In fact the ease and flexibility software provides implies a shift in control Digital media mediates itself turning software into a co author Yet the potentials of such a co authorship are still largely constrained by conventions stemming from the need to run strips of celluloid through a projector This book demonstrates how software can retrain filmmakers visions of the world from branching trees to the shifting contours of clouds It does so by ethnographically studying one particular technology the Korsakow System The result is a methodology for interrogating established software regimes a task increasingly in need of anthropological attention Legislator Use of Communication Technology Joe West, 2018-12-03 Political use of communication technology is rapidly changing the nature of politics one need look no further than President Trump's use of Twitter to realize the impact that communication technology is having on political processes Communication technology has long been recognized as part of the policy feedback process but until now has received relatively little focus often relegated to a line or two in a policy process theory system diagram labeled feedback This book takes a fresh look at the role that communication technology plays in the policy process by applying natural science control and electrical engineering concepts such as bandwidth latency phase crossover and positive and negative feedback to develop the critical frequency theory of policy system stability This theory suggests that every policymaking institution has some critical frequency of communications from the policy environment that once exceeded causes the policymaking institution to go unstable and it is this instability that causes the policymaking process to speed up With the theory developed data collected on approximately 2 000 state legislators from every state in the U S is analyzed using linear and nonlinear regression models to understand the statistically significant relationships between communication technology frequency of use and importance and the demographic political and institutional variables that contribute to policy process stability and instability Additionally interviews with legislators uncover many novel and interesting examples of the use of communication technology in the policy process For example legislators note that lobbyists sitting in legislative chambers listening to floor debates are actually texting questions and answers to legislators as they debate legislators participating in this process are acting as policymaking puppets for the lobbyists sitting in the gallery This single use of a communication technology has the capability of changing the very nature of what it means to be a legislator with lobbyists acting as surrogate legislators
