Ocean Worlds Jan Zalasiewicz, Mark Williams, 2014-10-24 Oceans make up most of the surface of our blue planet They may form just a sliver on the outside of the Earth but they are very important not only in hosting life including the fish and other animals on which many humans depend but in terms of their role in the Earth system in regulating climate and cycling nutrients As climate change pollution and over exploitation by humans puts this precious resource at risk it is more important than ever that we understand and appreciate the nature and history of oceans There is much we still do not know about the story of the Earth's oceans and we are only just beginning to find indications of oceans on other planets In this book geologists Jan Zalasiewicz and Mark Williams consider the deep history of oceans how and when they may have formed on the young Earth topics of intense current research how they became salty and how they evolved through Earth history We learn how oceans have formed and disappeared over millions of years how the sea nurtured life and what may become of our oceans in the future We encounter some of the scientists and adventurers whose efforts led to our present understanding of oceans And we look at clues to possible seas that may once have covered parts of Mars and Venus that may still exist below the surface on moons such as Europa and Callisto and the possibility of watery planets in other star systems
