Students will often be concerned about their writing and will not read carefully into the first step of each process. They identify each element and sometimes, surprisingly, will focus more on the details and not read carefully. Each element has a specific role to play. The following information gives students who understand the writing process, how to use each of the steps to write. Some advice is given to students who are not sure how to use the process. The information is given in the form of a checklist and a flowchart. The flowchart is a diagram that shows the steps in the process and how they are related. The checklist is a list of the steps in the process and a list of the questions that students should ask themselves at each step. The flowchart and checklist are designed to help students understand the writing process and to use it effectively.
