Author: Nekisa Mahzad

I have been a student at California State University Channel Islands (CI) for 5 semesters, and over the course of my stay I have grown and learned more than I thought possible. I came to this school from Moorpark Community College already knowing that I wanted to be an English teacher; I had taken numerous English courses and though I knew exactly what I was headed for-was I ever wrong. Going through the English program has taught me so much more than stuff about literature and language, it has taught me how to be me. I have learned here how to write and express myself, how to think for myself, and how to find the answers to the things that I don't know. Most importantly I have learned how important literature and language are.

When I started at CI, I thought I was going to spend the next 3 years reading classics, discussing them and then writing about them. That was what I did in community college English courses, so I didn't think it would be much different here. On the surface, to an outsider, I am sure that this is what it appears that C.I. English majors do. In most all my classes I did read, discuss, and write papers; however, I quickly found out that that there was so much more to it. One specific experience I had while at C.I. really shows how integrated this learning is. Instead of writing a paper for my final project in Perspectives of Multicultural Literature (ENGL 449), I decided with a friend to venture to an Indian reservation and compare it to a book we read by Sherman Alexie. We had a great time and we learned so much more that we ever could have done from writing a paper. The opportunity to do that showed me that there are so many ways that one can learn that are both fun and educational.

The English courses also taught me how powerful the written word and language can be. Words tell so much more than a story. Stories tell about life and the human condition, they bring up the past and people and cultures that are long gone. Literature teaches about the self and the world surrounding the self. From these classes I learned about the world, its people and its history; through literature I learned how we as humans are all related. By writing about what we learn and/or what we believe, we are learning how to express ourselves.

I know that my ability to write and express my ideas, thoughts and knowledge has grown stronger each semester. I have always struggled to put my thoughts on paper in a manner that is coherent and correct according to assignments. I can remember being told numerous times in community college to "organize your

Alex Baratta,2010-07-12 Considering the fact that the academic essay continues to be widely used as an assessment tool within education there is a need for students to develop their skills in this area However it is often the case that students perceive instruction in academic writing if it is offered at all as boring This book addresses these two issues First the book can be used by students themselves even in the absence of academic writing classes as a self help guide from which they can develop their knowledge of academic writing and subsequent proficiency Second by discussing the components of academic writing in terms such as film which are familiar to today s generation students are enabled to relate to the material better and see what might have been perceived as dull from a brand new perspective Visual learners in particular will enjoy the analogous link between films and essays and students today are arguably more visually literate than previous generations being exposed to visuals on a daily basis through text message iconography computer games and the Internet The visual instruction provided in turn helps to facilitate mental visuals in students minds from which their knowledge of essay writing can start to develop Literacy Projects for Student-Centered Classrooms
