Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week, 1000 kcal energy deficit diet on the body composition and physical fitness of obese women. The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The subjects were 20 obese women who were randomly assigned to either a control group or an experimental group. The control group was instructed to maintain their current diet and lifestyle, while the experimental group was instructed to follow a 1000 kcal energy deficit diet. The study was conducted over a 10-week period. The results of the study showed that the experimental group had a significant decrease in body weight, body fat percentage, and waist circumference compared to the control group. There was no significant difference in physical fitness between the two groups. The study suggests that a 1000 kcal energy deficit diet can lead to a significant reduction in body weight and body fat percentage in obese women.

If you are submitting two proposals, then the institutions separately tell each other about them. If the institutions request the challenges to fail, and no one submits requests, then the challenge will be closed. Otherwise, the challenge will be open.

- Day and night periods that are longer than the standard 24 hours occur most commonly with the use of artificial light or other light-emitting devices. To avoid this, there are two things the patient should do:
 - Avoid exposure to bright light at night
 - Avoid exposure to bright light during the day
- The end of the day is a good time to go to bed, and the beginning of the day is a good time to get up. The patient should try to go to bed and get up at the same time every day. The patient should also try to go to bed and get up at the same time every day.
- The patient should also try to go to bed and get up at the same time every day.
