Part A: RNA Structure

Besides ensuring the exact replication of chromosomes, the order of the bases is a genetic code of instructions for the cell. How does the cell "read" the chemical message coded in its DNA?

Part of the answer lies with a second molecule present in cells called ribonucleic acid (RNA). RNA is similar to DNA in that it is made of nucleotides. However, there is no deoxyribose or thymine in RNA. Deoxyribose is replaced by ribose in RNA, and thymine is replaced by uracil. If you look at their structural formulas and models, you will see that ribose and uracil are similar to the molecules they replace.

1 a. Which base is replaced by uracil in RNA?

2 b. What molecule replaces deoxyribose in RNA?

3. To which base in DNA do the following RNA bases pair?

Guanine _____

Adenine _____

Cytosine _____

Uracil _____

Part B: RNA Transcription

Open (unzip) one of your DNA models between the base pairs and separate the two halves. Using the left side of your DNA model as a pattern, match up the proper RNA nucleotides with the DNA nucleotides. You have made a messenger RNA molecule.

4. Do the RNA half-rung bases pair exactly as they would if this were DNA replication? _____

Remove the RNA nucleotide series from the DNA pattern. Close the DNA molecule back up with its original right side. DNA molecules "unzip" temporarily during RNA transcription and then zip closed again.

mRNA is a single-stranded molecule. Thus, the sequence of RNA nucleotides formed from DNA represents a complete mRNA molecule. After its formation, this mRNA leaves the nucleus and goes to where the ribosomes are. It carries the DNA message of base sequences in the exact same order out of the nucleus and into the cytoplasm. On this table compare DNA and RNA, check all that apply:

Science Strategies to Increase Student Learning and Motivation in Biology and Life Science Grades 7 Through 12 David Butler, 2022-02-17 On the first day of school have you ever thought of your classrooms as newly opened boxes of crayons I do Like pencil sticks of colored wax the students each have different names individual characteristics and various levels of brightness I set a goal each year to promote not only creativity but to draw out of my students reasons about why science is so important As science educators we not only need to illustrate the importance of knowing facts and terminology but also be able to frame those concepts in such a way that students are motivated to want to study and understand biology When I began teaching I never thought that I would have the multitude of experiences I have now I have taught in schools ranging from city to rural public to private and large to small not to mention classes ranging from general science to advanced biology Through these diverse experiences I have developed a number of strategies that have enhanced student achievement and science appreciation In this book I will share with you these experiences and techniques showing you how to enhance teaching skills increase student drive create mental connections better manage your class time use proper technology practice forms of differentiation and incorporate the NGSS In addition this text allows me to share my most treasured philosophies experiences and teaching strategies and how they can be applied to biology life science classrooms Impacts of Teacher Evaluation and Professional Development on Student Outcomes Edward Crowe, Rena F. Subotnik, 2012-07-01 This particular case study is designed to explore the extent to which a teacher evaluation system is effective It also addresses the challenge of measuring student achievement gains when the students in question are already at the high end of the scale a different yet important problem in an era when many concentrate on low hanging fruit or students on the bubble between failure and marginal performance By presenting a realworld case various research methods for studying issues raised by the case and the interchange among scholars engaged in this effort this volume will allow educational policymakers and practitioners to decide if a proposed approach is compelling and relevant for their settings Concurrently a comparison of various research methods addressing a real school based problem provides an important learning tool for the research community and for those who study and make policy We also believe that the case study and the research designs will be useful for those with responsibility for framing and funding a research agenda in education that utilizes strong research designs applied to topics that matter to student outcomes at all levels of the U S education system and at all levels of pupil performance And finally we hope that doctoral programs that seek to prepare the next generation of education researchers will find our approach helpful in their work Exploring Physical Anthropology Laboratory Manual & Workbook Suzanne E.
