- Do not underestimate that are longer than their chloride anions in the solid compound with the alkali metal or ammonium salts. In fact, that are also being the proper evidence for the length of the C-Cl bond.
- No real measure of the bond length with the alkali metal salts in aqueous solutions, the length of the covalent bond is not sufficient to explain the low salt water solubility.
- Do not forget the effect of hydrogen bonding. Chlorine has a high electronegativity, so it is a good hydrogen bond acceptor. Chlorine has a high electronegativity, so it is a good hydrogen bond acceptor.

Abstract: This research was conducted to determine whether the perceived quality of life of patients with chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD) was related to their level of adherence to treatment. The study included 60 patients with COPD who were recruited from a tertiary care hospital. The patients were divided into two groups based on their level of adherence to treatment: high adherence (n = 30) and low adherence (n = 30). The patients completed a questionnaire that assessed their perceived quality of life, including physical, emotional, and social aspects. The results showed that patients with high adherence to treatment had significantly higher scores on all three aspects of quality of life compared to patients with low adherence. These findings suggest that adherence to treatment is an important factor in determining the perceived quality of life of patients with COPD.
