Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and heart rate reserve (HRR) of sedentary middle-aged men. The subjects were randomly assigned to a control group (CG) and an exercise group (EG). The EG performed a 10-week training program consisting of 3 sessions per week. The HR and HRR were measured at rest and during submaximal and maximal exercise at baseline and after 10 weeks. The results showed that the EG had a significant decrease in HR and HRR at rest and during submaximal and maximal exercise compared to the CG. The results suggest that a 10-week training program can improve the cardiovascular fitness of sedentary middle-aged men.

- When a producer's price for the output rises or falls, it must adjust its output accordingly. For example, if the price of the output rises, the producer will increase its output. This is because the producer's marginal revenue (MR) curve shifts up, and the producer will increase its output until MR equals marginal cost (MC).
