| 1 (a) pathogens;                                                                                                                                                                         | 1     |                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| (b) any 2 from: bacteria, viruses, fungi;                                                                                                                                                | 2     | The question states organisms rather than micro-organisms so fungi is an acceptable answer, as well as some other types of organism that you do not need to know about. |
| (c) digestive system/gut;respiratory system/lungs;                                                                                                                                   | 2     | There are other interfaces but these are the two you need to remember.                                                                                                                |
| (d) damages cells of the host;production/release of toxins;                                                                                                                          | 2     | Learn these; they are important points!                                                                                                                                               |
| 2 (a) (i) because there are big differences;any correct named example, e.g. lung cancer/bronchitis much lower in women than in men;                                                  | 2     | Although not required in this question, it is often advisable to quote specific figures from the data as examples of differences.                                                     |
| (ii) easier to compare if sample size effectively the same;different numbers of people in each group;                                                                                | 2     | The important point for the first mark is to compare .                                                                                                                         |
| (b) any 2 from: more stress/more saturated fats in diet/less physical activity/high blood pressure/high blood cholesterol levels/obesity;                                                | 2     | As the question is not specific to lifestyle factors, other factors, such as genetics, age and sex, are valid answers.                                                                |
| 3 (a) risk increases 3.8–4 times;evidence of correct working (e.g. $7.8/2.0$ );                                                                                                      | 2     | It is important to be able to use data to calculate how risk can increase or decrease.                                                                                                |
| (b) increasing cholesterol levels carries greater risk;starting smoking increases risk from 2.0% to 3%;increasing cholesterol levels from 5 to 7 increases risk from 2.0% to 5%; | 3     | You need to interpret data to identify risk factors and how these may change.                                                                                                         |
| 4 (a) enables comparison to be made;since increase in incidence with age/older people have more exposure to cigarettes;                                                              | 2 max | Again the idea of comparison is essential for the first mark.                                                                                                                         |
